Staff may from time to time in the course of their work have to deal with body fluids, such as vomit, diarrhoea, blood or materials contaminated with body fluids. Viruses may be present in any body fluids, including Hepatitis B or HIV, but the risk of transmission is minimal, if not eliminated, as long as staff adopt sensible precautions.

Staff are advised to contact the site team first and only deal with body fluids themselves if necessary (e.g. if the site team are unavailable).

Certain infections can only be transmitted by direct contact, that is via open cuts or abrasions.

Good personal hygiene should be common practice at all times.

Viruses cannot penetrate intact skin.

1. First Aid measures

All cuts/abrasions to the skin sustained during the working day must be washed immediately with soap and water.

All cuts/abrasions to the hands and fingers must be covered with a waterproof dressing whilst at work.

Disposable gloves must be worn when dealing with blood and body fluids. The site team will ensure these are readily available.

Hands must be washed thoroughly with soap and water after handling blood and body fluids and on removal of the gloves.

2. Clearing up of bodily fluids

It is essential that all body fluids are cleaned up as quickly as possible and usually this task would be designated to the Site Team. If no members of the site team are available a volunteer member of staff will carry out the task.

Employees (and voluntary workers) must be appropriately trained and clearly understand the procedures in place for clearing up body fluids.

Serious injury can result from heavy loads being lifted incorrectly and every attempt must be made to avoid the need for manual handling of bulky and heavy objects wherever possible.

In general terms staff should not handle loads in excess of 25Kg on their own although this is not a fixed figure and everyone has a different capacity and a different level of experience.

Training, guidance and instruction will be given to all staff whose duties include moving loads.

Staff should not attempt any operation if they are not absolutely confident that they can safely do so. They should seek assistance if they are in doubt.

Staff who are users are entitled to an eye test which will be paid for by the school should they require it.

Regulations regarding the reporting of Injuries, Diseases, and Dangerous Occurrences (RIDDOR) are published by HSE and must be followed in all appropriate cases.

All staff will be made aware of these regulations and their importance.

Any accident or injury is to be reported by the person or persons involved in the accident, or by the head of department, and entered in the accident report book (either the student accident book or the staff accident book). Accident books are held in the main office. A member of the SLT is to ensure that the board of governors is informed of all accidents of a serious nature and any dangerous occurrences, and where applicable follow the requirements of current legislation.

All accidents and near misses no matter how small must be reported using the school's published procedure. A copy of the report must be sent to the Deputy Headteacher responsible for Health and Safety.

The reporting of near misses is as important as that of actual accidents because action taken following the near miss is the best way of preventing a future accident.

Risk assessments for the activity taking place when an accident or near miss occurs must be reviewed.

Information on RIDDOR and what requires a report to be submitted is found at

<http://www.hse.gov.uk/riddor/>

22.0 Use of premises outside working hours

When the caretaker opens the school prior to the letting he must show the person responsible for the event the whereabouts of the nearest fire alarm call point, fire extinguishers, and fire exits to the area to be used. He should also acquaint that person with any special emergency arrangements such as wheelchair routes, disabled evacuation equipment etc.

23.0 Lone Working

Lone workers can be defined as anyone who works by themselves without close or direct supervision.

Site staff may regularly be lone workers and therefore carry radios at all times but teachers and other staff may also work in isolated classrooms/offices after normal school hours or during holiday times.

Any member of staff working after hours must notify the Site Team or reception of their location and intended time of departure.

Lone workers should not undertake any activities which present a significant risk of injury.

Lone workers operating during holiday periods should be given a contact number for a member of office staff who is on site or be issued with a radio so that they can contact one of the site staff.

The Head teacher has the duty of ensuring all members of staff read this Safety Policy and that copies of this policy are displayed on the Staff Room noticeboard and are on the school web site.

Any amendments to any policy will be circulated to all staff. Any hazards that are brought to the attention of the Head teacher from any source will also be circulated to staff who may be affected.
